

GERMANY

- The population of Germany is 83 million.
- The area of Germany is 357.386 km²
- The name for Germany in the German language is Deutschland
- The capital of Germany is Berlin, it is also the largest city.
- Other major cities include Munich, Hamburg, Cologne, Stuttgart and Frankfurt.
- Germany is a member of the European Union.
- Germany has had an unsettled history, including the Nazi regime and tension between East and West Germany (which were reunified in 1990).
- Countries that border Germany include Belgium, the Netherlands, Denmark, Austria, the Czech Republic, France, Luxembourg, Poland and Switzerland.
- There are many national parks in Germany include the Bavarian Forest National Park, Jasmund National Park, Harz National Park, and the Wadden Sea National Parks among others.
- Over 100 Germans have been awarded the Nobel prize in their field, including Albert Einstein, who was born in Germany.
- Germany has been home to famous composers such as Johann Bach, Ludwig van Beethoven and Richard Wagner.

Donaudampfschiffahrtsgesellschaftskapitän is the longest word in Germany and is longer than supercalifragilisticexpialidocious.

The German flag colours are black red and yellow.
In Germany there are lots of sausages.

(Fun facts)

Germany has the highest pop in the EU.

65% of Germanys high ways have no speed limit.

One third of Germany is covered with forests and woodlands.

University is free for everyone (even non Germans).

Germany also has a big liking for different type of sausages.

There are many places to go and I'll be showing a few

this is Berlin
as the Germany.

also know capital of

This is the Berlin
very tall tower located in Fernsehturm it is a Berlin.

This is know as
is a very big gate
tourist attraction.

Brandenburg gate it
and is a very big

(Food)

Currywurst is a very lovely German food and a lot of Germans like it very much.

Schnitzel is Crispy breaded Pork cutlet, garnished with sweet mustard aioli, fresh Lemon and Parsley.

It is mostly common for Germans to eat meat when have dinner and some times they have meat for lunch.