

You are on your way to the airport in a taxi and realise that you have left your luggage at home.

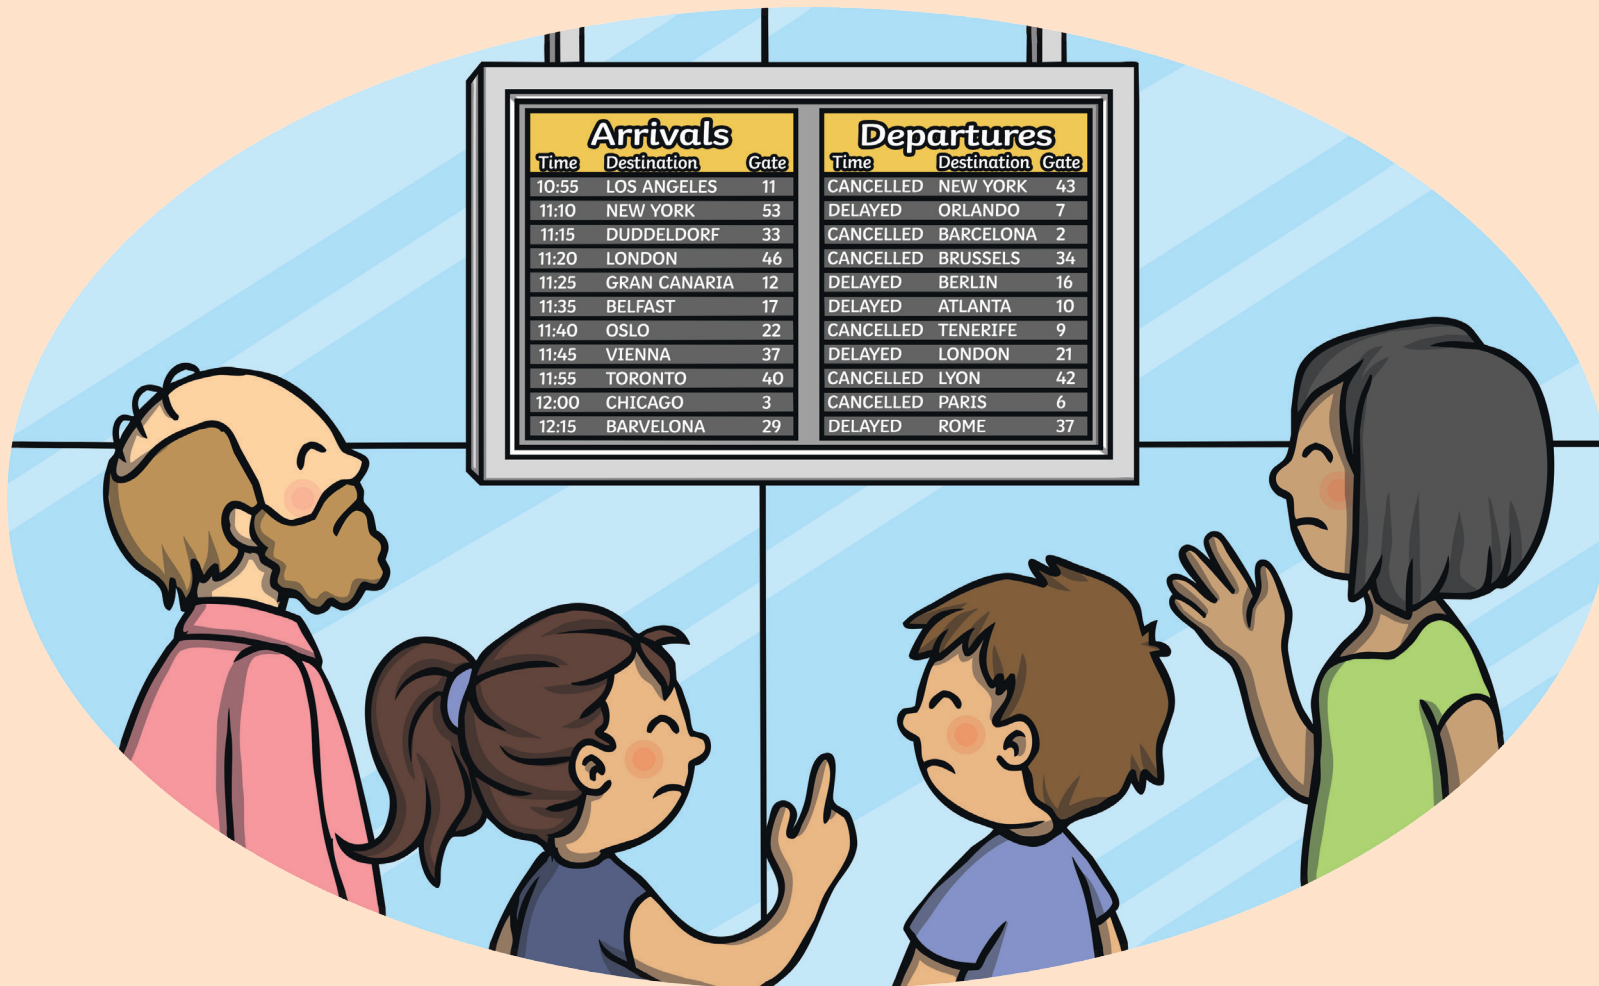

There is a long queue of people waiting to check their bags in at the check-in desk.

Your flight departure desk has changed.

Your flight has been delayed or cancelled and you must stay in the airport until the next flight.

Your bags have been chosen by the airport security official to have a further inspection.

You are travelling alone on a plane for the first time to visit your granny in London and you are a little bit scared.

You discover that your passport is out of date just as you turn up at the airport.

You have been upgraded to First Class and get to go into the VIP Departures Lounge.
